1. Between 10,000 and 15,000 6 SH 7 tubes were produced during the second quarter of 1953.
 2. All efforts to plate grids with gold, tin or copper have been abandoned as only negative results were produced.
 3. The construction bureau has decided that the current construction of all types of tubes is to be altered. The new method of construction is designed to save scarce raw materials. There are still severe material shortages, particularly of P2 iron plate for the production of anode plates.
 4. The quarterly quota on the 6 SA 7 tube has been reached.
 5. In the winding shop, meetings are held when the second shift replaces the first in order to encourage the workers to increase production over the norm voluntarily. The women in the shop have so far shown very little interest. The supervisor, Bormann (fmu), has been called to account by the SED for not getting more results from these meetings.
